Chapter 4

Revising Command and Local Administrative Forms and Publications

4-1. Policy and Procedure

Fort Hood follows policy and procedure used in developing DA publications. Army Regulation 25-30 (The Army Publishing Program) establishes policy for developing a publication. Army Pamphlet 25-40 (Army Publishing: Action Officer's Guide) establishes procedures for developing and maintaining policy and procedural publications.

4-2. Updating Command and Local Forms

Contact the forms manager at the number listed in Table 3-1 to update a command and local form. The forms manager maintains copies of all Fort Hood forms. Users needing to update a form may choose two options to submit changes:

a. Mark changes on the draft form and E-mail the visual representation to the forms manager using the general publishing E-mail account listed in Table 3-1: a visual representation allows accurate development. Include contact information in the E-mail note.

- b. Mark changes on the draft form and fax to the number listed in Table 3-1. Include contact information with the fax cover sheet.

4-3. Updating Command and Local Administrative Publications

Contact the editorial assistant at the number listed in Table 3-1 to update a command and local publication. The editorial assistant maintains an intelligent digital file of most administrative publications, which gives action officers an intelligent file to use when updating publications and eliminates redundancy. All publications are produced in Microsoft Word© and cannot be produced in a different software program. Action officers must submit draft publications in an intelligent Microsoft Word© format: editorial services cannot be performed without an intelligent file. Contact the publishing E-mail account listed in Table 3-1, or contact the editorial assistant to get a copy of the required file. Ensure you identify the required publication by number.

DHR provides full-scope editorial service on draft publications. Desktop publishing is part of that service. Action officers should develop a publication to include all content, paragraph numbers, and figures and tables as closely to the end state as possible before sending the intelligent file to the editorial assistant. ASD will provide as much desktop publishing as necessary to produce the publication according to DA publishing guidelines. Submit the draft publication to the editorial assistant using the general publishing E-mail account listed in Table 3-1.
